

Hospital's green bus service is just the ticket for patients and planet

Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust

Green-e Get Around

Addenbrooke's Charitable Trust teamed up with a well-known patient governor of Cambridge University Hospitals to fund a fully electric bus which provides a cleaner, greener, more accessible and more frequent service for passengers travelling around the site.

“ Getting around the hospital can be a real challenge, especially for those with limited mobility like me. The new bus service helps overcome that challenge and the fact it has now been extended and has an additional stop at the main bus terminal, will be greatly welcomed by everyone.
- Ruth Greene ”

Ruth Greene, whose kind donation enabled the first all-electric bus service on campus.

The electric bus was named the Green-e Get Around in tribute to Ruth Greene, ACT Supporter, Patient Governor and patient, who generously provided funding for the bus. Ruth has been a loyal and hard-working supporter of the Trust for many years, despite having cancer, and wanted to fund a patient courtesy bus to help patients get around the expanding campus more easily.

